FIVE PEOPLE CHARGED IN 2001 ARMORED CAR ROBBERY

Five Detroit residents were charged in a criminal complaint with the robbery of a Total Armored Services truck on December 14, 2001, announced United States Attorney Craig S. Morford. The criminal complaint, filed on December 17, 2004, alleges that Total Armored Service guard Norman Anthony Stevens, a father of six, was killed during the course of the robbery. The complaint further alleges that the charged individuals ambushed the total Armored Services truck as it was restocking ATM machines at the Dearborn Credit Union located at 400 Town Center Drive, Dearborn, Michigan. The victim, Norman Stevens, had been carrying money to the machines when he was shot at least three times by two of the defendants.

Named in the complaint were Timothy Dennis O'Reilly, Norman Duncan, Kevin Watson, Earl Johnson and Archie Broom, members of a defunct motorcycle club known as the Blue Stone Motorcycle Club. O'Reilly, Duncan and Broom are currently being held in custody and/or are serving sentences for unrelated charges. Watson and Johnson were arrested this morning as their shift began at the Ford Motor Company Rouge Plant. Two other participants have yet to be identified. Due to the serious nature of the charges, the government will be seeking federal detention on all the charged individuals.

Mr. Morford added that, “A conviction of this offense carries a maximum penalty of death and a $250,000 fine.” A complaint is only a charge and is not evidence of guilt. Trial can only be held on a grand jury indictment. This case is being investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Dearborn Police Department.

Mr. Morford added that, “The gratitude of our office is extended to the United States Marshal’s Service and the Michigan Department of Corrections for their extraordinary assistance in this investigation.”
